Beam Analysis Tool - Hi-Tec Solution is an innovative software tool for structural analysis of steel and aluminum members and sheets. It provides a wide set of advanced solutions for the estimation of the geometrical, mechanical and acoustic properties of the beam and plate and the graphical generation of the respective cross section. The software can be used to analyze various configurations of structural elements in the field of structural engineering. Key features: Graphical calculation of the beam and the plate cross-sections; Beam design by simulation; Verification of the structural design by means of a comparison of the results obtained with the analytical and the parametric methods; Production of the load charts with parameters such as deflections, strains, stresses, temperatures, and natural frequencies; Production of the stress charts with parameters such as strains and stresses and temperatures; Production of the frequency charts with parameters such as natural frequencies and modal damping; Production of the crack charts with parameters such as strains and stresses, crack lengths, loads, etc.; Calculation of the concrete reinforcement design and the steel reinforcement design; Data handling; Check the compatibility of the results obtained with the modal or finite element analysis (FEA) and the design by the use of any available FEA software; Possibility of working with the CAD models of the beams in the form of Design Data Exchange (DDE); General design and technical support in the form of Technical Help.
