It was set in 1970s New York City and followed a pair of streetwalkers — a hooker named Bunny and her companion Candy — as they tried to make a go of it. The TV show is set to premiere in early 2018. And then, alas

Nonpoint source (NPS) pollution of groundwater is a serious environmental problem in some of the most important areas of the world's wetlands. This is true especially in those countries where diffuse emissions can be important or where intensively used industrial sites are located in close proximity to wetlands. Point source pollution is a bigger concern, especially in areas where streams, rivers, or lakes are located near land-developing areas, or especially in systems receiving stormwater discharges. The National Pollutant Discharge Elimination System (NPDES) permits do not include discharge of any pollutants from a properly constructed point source into a NPS nonattainment area unless these point source discharges fall under an NPS category as defined by the EPA or are listed as an exempted discharger. A review of such point source discharges to a NPS nonattainment area is not possible if no NPS category is associated with the point source discharges. It is important to the EPA to properly implement the NPDES and to be able to determine what discharge points are valid and what must be treated as a point source. Unfortunately, these discharges often occur to systems that are otherwise well regulated. In such a situation, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (USEPA) is unable to ensure that its NPDES compliance program is properly applied to such discharges, and

But he hasn't even begun to think about what he'd do once he stepped out the front door of his home in Newark, N.J. 'There's no entertainment in America,' says Musk. 'There's nothing I'd want to watch.' So, he'd stick to watching television at home? 'Definitely,' says Musk, who also said he was not impressed by new U.S. plans to build a high-speed train line between New York and Washington, D.C. Musk is neither a high-speed train advocate nor a fan of bringing up-market business to many countries. Last year he called Elon Musk's electric car company Tesla (TSLA) 'a fraud,' saying it was 'too expensive,' and has been critical of the U.S. government's bailout of General Motors (GM). He says he wants to make sure the public owns the benefits of Tesla's electric car business, which would be 'very expensive' to build in the U.S. 'The U.S. should support companies that are American and don't make cars outside the U.S. [but] show support for [Tesla] and the technology that comes from it,' he says. 'That's not something that's going to be ubiquitous.' Overall, Musk doesn't think America is ready to take the lead in
