[Effect of loop diuretics on urine and serum potassium in healthy subjects]. To assess the effects of different doses of furosemide and ethacrynic acid on serum and urine potassium, we measured the serum and urinary potassium values at steady state before, after the intravenous administration of 10, 20, 50 mg furosemide and 20 mg ethacrynic acid in 20 healthy volunteers. No relation between intravenous furosemide and serum potassium or urine potassium was observed. And no relationship was also observed between the dose of intravenous furosemide and the peak serum and urine potassium values. Although the intravenous infusion of ethacrynic acid was well tolerated, serum potassium increased and urine potassium decreased with the elevation of the ethacrynic acid infusion. Our results suggest that there is no simple relationship between serum or urine potassium and the dose of loop diuretics, and they should be considered for the therapy of diabetic kidney disease. Laser-assisted brain surgery and review of the literature. Laser is one of the most widely used technologies in surgical procedures. Its advantages include precision, ease of operation, hemostasis, and lack of thermocoagulation. Laser-assisted procedures have been used in the following neurosurgical procedures: Removal of brain tumors, low-grade gliomas, thalamic lesions, pineal lesions, and pineal tumours. There are potential advantages of laser over micro-instrumentation, including less tissue trauma, shorter surgery times, and less intraoperative blood loss. Q: Building JSON file in PowerBI with different object names I have an Excel file that works with a PCF file on one of my colleagues' PC's. I then had to get the PCF file from him and was able to do that. It was correctly generated in Power BI and has all the correct columns and data. My problem comes when I try to get the data into my worksheets. I am able to make an extract from his file in Power BI but then when I try to use pivot tables or matrix, I get missing columns that I know are in his PCF. Here is the extract that I am creating on my end: Extract = UNION ([Deal].[Dept].[dept_id] AS [dept_id], [Deal].[Dept].[dept_name] AS [dept

Q: Cannot retrieve value of input in AJAX call I have a form with one input field and I'm trying to get the value of this input field in PHP by using AJAX: PHP if(isset($_POST['catId'])) { echo 'cat id = ' . $_POST['catId']; } If I run this code it outputs: cat id = Array But if I put this code: "> it outputs cat id = cat id = cat id = If I do this: "> No error. No output. I guess, there is problem with the value of $_POST['catId'], because the value is not a string but an Array This solution has worked to me in the past and I can't figure out why this is not working A: The id value for your text field should be id="cat_id" not id="catId" as this will give a not allowed error and is not valid HTML. Reference: The id attribute specifies a unique identifier (ID) for an HTML element. This element can be referred to by the document using the element's identifier instead of its index. Q: How to use where clause on a field that is not an attribute Here is
