Thank you for the piece. Having gotten this far into it, I find myself eager to see what the next level of complexity and intelligence is, which I think of as the true protagonist of a novel (and not the detective). Like everyone else, I am a romantic about the author of ‘The Art of the Novel’ and I have an implicit idea of what is meant by an ‘intelligent’ novel. I do not think that all novels of that level are necessarily equal and it seems to me that more often than not, it is a matter of chance that a novel is written that way. But it was interesting to read about the intellectual origins of the novel. Concerning the ‘two novelists’, I think this may be a question of whether the genre
