In order to resolve the conflict before chaos erupted in the city, the king of France, Louis XI, offered his protection to Francesco, who, as his heir, would gain control of the duchy of Milan. Sforza supported the candidacy of his son, while all three cardinals advised Francesco. With his candidacy backed by France and the pope's legitimacy as the guardian of the Holy See, Francesco emerged the victor. He was crowned in a lavish ceremony at the Duomo on 23 April 1476.
