It has a great popularity in the market. can be defined as a composition of the composition ratios of the materials. More specifically, the Young's modulus of the metal material is preferably about 50 GPa or more, and the Young's modulus of the resin material is preferably about 1 GPa or more, or about 20 GPa or less. If the

Young's modulus of the resin material is smaller than that of the metal material, a small amount of the resin material is required for holding the stack of the film element. If the Young's modulus of the resin material is larger than that of the metal material, the pressure generated when the film is expanded and pressed by a heat absorber is increased. It is preferable that the film material is a metal film or a composite film having a large Young's modulus. The composite film composed of the metal film and the resin may be produced, for example, by the technique disclosed in JP-A-2000-263379, which is incorporated herein by reference in its entirety. It is preferable that the metal material is of a plate-like shape, and the material has a thickness of about 100  $\mu\text{m}$  or more and less than about 400  $\mu\text{m}$ . In this case, the thickness of the metal material is preferably about 200  $\mu\text{m}$  or less, and the thickness of the resin material is preferably about 50  $\mu\text{m}$  or more and less than about 400  $\mu\text{m}$ . If the thickness of the resin material is larger than that of the metal material, the metal material absorbs heat generated when the heat absorber is deformed in the self-regulating manner. The invention according to still another aspect provides a film element for absorbing heat generated by an internal combustion engine. The film element includes an expanding/contracting heat absorber composed of a metal and a heat-insulative resin, and an expansion/contraction frame to hold the heat absorber.

The heat-insulative resin has a thickness of about 20  $\mu\text{m}$  or less. According to this invention, because the expanding/contracting heat absorber is composed of a metal and a heat-insulative resin, the absorbing rate
