Android Reverse Tethering 3.3 Zip Do

It's called "USB Tethering". With an Android phone, you simply turn it on and connect it to your PC. The PC should then download all the required drivers. After that, you can use the Internet. For example, in this application, you can simply select one of the operators, and the application will automatically find and install all the necessary drivers. It has a special section

"How does it work?", where you can find out how the system works and how this or that function works. This application has detailed instructions, in which you can ask any question regarding the system and device.
