Both Photoshop and Elements can save a Photoshop file (.PSD) or an Elements file (.EPS), but Elements can also save a Photoshop file (.PSB). This allows you to save a file in Elements and edit and continue in Photoshop. Once you have selected the type of file you want to save or open, check the Format box. (Details: Set file type). Click and drag to reposition the image. To resize an image, first select the Image (or Insert Image) tool. Click and drag to resize the image. To adjust the image's size: Click and drag a corner of the sizing box to resize the image to the size you want. To zoom in: double-click inside the box. To zoom out: double-click outside the box. To move an image, first select the Image (or Insert Image) tool. Click and drag to move the image. Note: Selecting an image for further editing may sometimes open a new version of Elements. This is because the original file is opened in Elements, while the image is still the original image and is being edited in Photoshop Elements. You may also lose your changes made to the original file if you open the image in Photoshop Elements. If you are working in Elements, it is a good idea to save frequently. Open a Photoshop file (.PSD) Click and drag to open the image. Click the image to open the image in Photoshop. Adjust the brightness and contrast Click the Brightness/Contrast button. Adjust the image's brightness. Adjust the image's contrast. Clone or cut With the Image (or Insert Image) tool, drag and drop to duplicate the selected area. The duplicate appears in a separate window. Click the image to place it in the same layer. If necessary, adjust the image's layer styles (click the Layers icon to open the Layers palette). If necessary, use a Selection tool to create a selection around the object to be copied. To duplicate the image: Press and hold Ctrl+D to make a selection. Double-click the image to place it in a new document. Choose File > Save As to save 388ed7b0c7

MOSCOW (Reuters) - Russia’s economic growth slowed to a six-year low in the first three months of this year, and even the trade deficit narrowed, a Reuters review of figures showed on Monday. Slideshow (2 images) But the state of the consumer market remained a concern - slowing demand for consumer goods and services and growth in real wages was hurting the economy. A lack of trust in official statistics, long prominent in Russia, also hurt growth. Between January and March, Russian GDP grew by just 0.9% on a year earlier, the lowest since 2012, official data showed, adding to concerns about the slowing global economy. Private businesses lowered their GDP growth outlook to 1-2% from 1.5-2.5% in December, the Central Statistics Office said. Russia will need to pick up growth this year if President Vladimir Putin is to score his fourth term in a presidential election on Sunday, because growth has been running at an annual rate of around 1.8% for six years and Putin’s rating has fallen to a three-year low of around 80%. But the role of the state-dominated economy was unclear after the Kremlin’s last reform drive, which ended with a slump in the rouble, hit growth by more than a third. “The negative dynamics appear to be dominant in the balance of forces, which is in part related to the risks to the economic climate,” analysts at Credit Agricole said in a note. “This was the case in March, first-quarter GDP growth was relatively weak, while after reaching a peak, exports as a share of GDP have declined over the past year, which poses risks to real GDP growth rates.” Consumer spending, which accounts for more than half of GDP, fell in March and industrial production fell for a third straight month in April as a pinch on profits kept demand for goods to a minimum. Industrial output was especially weak, which led Reuters to cut its forecast for the year to 0.3% from 1.2-1.3% previously. The long-running gas export dispute in Europe and U.S. sanctions against Russia over the Ukraine crisis have also weighed on the economy. The rouble’s slump further has hurt spending on imports as some of Russia’s most important consumer goods and services are priced in dollars. The country🔥

Q: How to add extra JSON values in postman for GET method? I am trying to build a POSTMAN Rest API for GET method in which I am trying to send some extra JSON values as part of the request. I am following a basic structure given in Postman website. { "id": "d49ccb1a-ddac-4a9b-8bdf-06bf9dd74a62" "firstName": "Salman" "lastName": "Haider" } My question is: How do I send the above query and the extra values (i.e. firstName, lastName)? What is the format of the body that I need to submit? Thank you. A: If you add the parameters as per the format in the documentation you'll get it working. { "method": "GET", "url": "", "params": { "id": "d49ccb1a-ddac-4a9b-8bdf-06bf9dd74a62", "firstName": "Salman", "lastName": "Haider" }, "headers": { } } Q: how to pass the id from one function to another function? This is the code $(document).ready(function(){ $("#add").click(function(){ var x=$("#addinput").val(); if(x=="") { alert("Please select a Name"); return false; } alert(x); $.ajax({ type: "POST", url: "add.php", data: "addadd=&x"
