I'm going to show you how to use the wonderful RAW converter in Adobe Photoshop Elements for editing photos. The Adobe Photoshop website has a wonderful video for Elements with the RAW converter. If you don't have a membership to Photoshop.com you can download it here. Understanding the Basic Photoshop Elements Workflow The Basic workflow for a RAW converter will look like this: Open the RAW file Use the RAW converter to convert the RAW file to a jpeg Simple isn't it? The first step is to open the RAW file in Adobe Photoshop Elements. I don't know of any other way of opening RAW files other than through Adobe Photoshop Elements. If you don't have a membership to Adobe.com you can download the software here. Step 1: Opening the RAW File In the Elements Browse window choose Browse your photo library. . Click Open There are three options in Photoshop Elements when opening a RAW file. The RAW Converter allows you to choose the RAW version without demosaicing. If you click the Store as JPG All option the option changes to Store as TIFF file or Store as JPEG file. These options are the same as the JPG options in the Elements Browse Window. If you select the option Convert to JPG only the RAW Converter will open, but it will still

The Future of 3D printing was just made easier and more affordable as the world's largest 3D printer manufacturer, PEI International, launched a new flagship 3D printer that is compatible with Arduino. The Pixy META 3D printer was unveiled at the Maker Faire in the US and we caught up with PEI's Andrea Gherman to find out more about their newest addition to the 3D printer market. What is the Pixy META 3D printer? The Pixy META 3D printer is a tiny and affordable 3D printer. With a single filament (i.e. plastic filament), you can print a wide variety of objects, including watches, action figures, and even small gadgets. With the Pixy META you don't need to worry about getting a complex design into shape. Pixy META has a solid metal frame and a plastic body. Like the RepRap, but simpler, it is a fully functional 3D printer that works without any electronics. It is compatible with Arduino, a microcontrollers commonly used for prototyping. You can program the Pixy META from your smart phone using Arduino's mobile app. What does this mean for Arduino users? The Arduino community and ecosystem are growing at a rapid pace and now they are open to 3D printers. Using an Arduino with the Pixy META is actually really easy, as the printer has built-in headers and jumper wires. The Pixy META with Arduino is still in its beta stage. This means that it is still under development and we are unlikely to see the Pixy META with Arduino released for commercial use. However, that could change at any time and we will keep you up to date, as we learn more. How does it work? We don't want to spoil the surprise, so we're not going to say any more, but the Pixy META with Arduino is a fully functional 3D printer with Arduino headers and jumpers. Where can I buy it? As the initial release of the Pixy META with Arduino is still in beta, you are likely to see it in a few different high-street stores. A new Kickstarter campaign by PEI will be launching soon and we're excited to find out more. What do you think? We think that it is great to

Q: Dynamically load content for different iframes in one page I am using iframes in one of my webpages in my project. The problem I have is that I need to change the contents of my iframes which currently take a static HTML page and load that on the page dynamically. My issue is that there are different iframes and I need to change the contents of all of them to load a different HTML pages depending on what the user selects. The main page looks something like this: Yahoo Your browser does not support iframes. Your browser does not support iframes. Your browser does not support iframes. `var i=document.getElementById("a").contentWindow i.document.write("page 1")` Ideally I need to change the src attribute of each iframe to load different html pages dynamically. I believe this would be done using AJAX but I have never used it before, if anyone could give me a little advice on how to approach this. This is very similar to what I need but the issue is that I need to change the HTML dynamically depending on what the user selects. Your content here! If there is any other information that would be helpful in helping me please let me know, I've tried to be as detailed as possible with the question. A: HTML 5 does have (Dynamically loaded) Framesets, but they're not really designed to be used in your manner. Framesets are meant to be a fixed set of pages that exist inside a web page, nothing more. Even if you do use this feature you would have to set up a workaround for this. Your best bet is to add the target attribute to your iframes, then add the src-attribute in some kind of a pseudo event handler. (You'll have to supply a JavaScript
