Starting today, I will be sharing daily software / operating systems that I use and find useful. The first blog will be about Microsoft Visio 2010. If you've already downloaded it, you may know how good its reliability is and how well it performs in general. Though I do not use this software, I'd like to share my review here. I feel this software is quite a worthy project as it can help save millions of users from potential computer problems and software crashes.

Microsoft recently made a big deal about the milestone of 10 billion (yes, billion) copies sold. How many people around the world could have used an operating system without a computer if not for Microsoft. Seeing this big milestone, Microsoft took a chance to work on its long-standing error in bringing Windows to the Mac platform. This project, as we all know, has been ongoing for a long time now. The good thing is, Microsoft is proud of its project and even published a press release about the milestone, announcing it as a product that brought "10 billion friends to Windows". But what is Microsoft Visio? It is an office suite which is currently in its 3rd version and is also known as Visio. Though it has been released as a freeware to the public, Microsoft e79caf774b edit : I want to find the database, in which the table is present. I am using SQL Server Management Studio. A: If you know the name of the database containing the table then you can find it: `select * from sys.databases where name = 'YourDatabaseName'` If you are not sure which database contains your table, you need to apply some logic. You need to select all the databases: declare @sql nvarchar(max), @sql2 nvarchar(max) select @sql = coalesce(@sql + 'UNION ', 'UNION ALL ') + 'select * from' + QUOTENAME(name) from sys.databases WHERE name <'master' ORDER BY name select @sql2 = coalesce(@sql2 + 'UNION ', 'UNION ALL ') + 'select * from' + QUOTENAME(name) from sys.databases WHERE name = 'YourDatabaseName' if @sql IS NOT NULL BEGIN print @sql PRINT 'NO DATABASE FOUND' END else BEGIN PRINT @sql END print @sql2 PRINT 'DATABASE FOUND' This will display a single query string: select * from

YourTableName UNION ALL select *
from YourOtherTableName UNION ALL select * from YourOtherTableName2
UNION ALL select * from YetAnotherTableName Copy this query string and put it into a temp table. It might be easier to just execute the query string: DECLARE @command
nvarchar(MAX) SELECT @command = (SELECT * FROM sys.databases
WHERE name = 'YourDatabaseName' ORDER BY name FOR XML PATH(''))
PRINT @command EXEC
sp_executesql @command or you could do it in a loop : DECLARE @sql nvarchar(MAX) SELECT @sql = COALESCE(@sql + 'UNION ', 'UNION ALL
') + 'select * from'+ QUOTENAME(name)
