Fox News is at it again when it comes to reporting on Islam and Muslims. It may be the first time, but not the last, where Fox News's news channel has used its colossal and highly profitable social network to spread and amplify Islamophobia. The most recent example of Fox News promoting Islamophobia occurred today on "The Story," when a segment discussed German Muslim woman Aiman Madi. Madi claimed Muslims celebrate jubilant on religious occasions like holidays and the birth of Jesus. Madi is a Muslim who became famous for spreading Islamophobia on social media. In one instance, Madi shared an image of Jesus and used a slur to describe him. Fox News blamed the social media scandals on liberals for a lack of scrutiny. Today's report also falsely equated Madi's claims to those of the Islamic State terrorist group. In fact, the Islamic State's claim that the lives of Christians are cheap had nothing to do with celebrating on holidays or birthdays. A Fox News guest, Joel Pollak, tried to defend the network's reporting, telling host Martha MacCallum that
