17 SINGLE-PLAYER AD-HOC GAME. Fly with a Cub and through a massive 3D environment. Craft yourself a cannon from scrap and face all kinds of obstacles. Explore a beautiful terrain map with your handcrafted planes! Use your skills to pass the trials and increase your score. Or... kill the other Cub. IS THIS THE GAME FOR YOU? Because of the random obstacle maps, there is no single perfect world where you can reach a certain score or death, but rather an endless world full of challenges in which you constantly have to adjust yourself to adapt. During play you can freely switch between the plane and cannon skills. Both have their strengths and disadvantages. You can add scrap to improve your plane and keep it invisible. Or you can use your cannon to travel through the obstacles, but it can't go through objects and you won't be able to play in the terrain area. You can also use the cannon to access areas that are either inaccessible to the plane or to defeat the other Cub in combat. By using the cannon you can destroy an obstacle in one hit, but at the same time you can kill the opponent Cub. If the February 19, 2014 My left side is affected by shoulder disability. I've had it for a while now and have had a lot of technical problems resulting from it. My left shoulder felt chronically tight and painful for the past few months and every time I move my shoulder, especially in certain directions it really hurts. I had some shoulder issues and was told by a doctor that it was because I've been doing way to much bench pressing. My short term goal is to decrease the inflammation of my left shoulder while I am having shoulder related issues. I have been taking a lot of time off. I do a lot of swimming, cardio, bodybuilding, etc. Which is a lot of really heavy weight lifting, working out, swimming, and lifting weights. I hope this plan will help relieve my pain and decrease inflammation. My long term goal is to decrease shoulder length and get my left shoulder to close up and stop hitting my scapula bone. My goal is to be back to my normal self again. I really miss being able to move my shoulder freely. My current plan is to stop all of my heavy lifting for the next two to four weeks. If my shoulder doesn't get better by then, I will have it evaluated by a doctor. I really want to get my shoulder right, and if this has anything to do with it I'm willing to do what ever it takes to get it right. Anyone out there with any similar shoulder problems or shoulder related injuries? I know it can be a very frustrating condition to deal with.

February 13, 2014 I really wanted to participate in the Sprint Triathlon yesterday but it was a rainy night. So I had to reschedule my day. It was more than a week ago and I'm really bad about forgetting to write about things. I tried this out yesterday morning. I was feeling pretty good about my running. I was set for a PR in my 5k. My first mile was 15:00. I felt great and kept pounding the pavement. The second mile was about a 12:50. I was still feeling really good. Then I looked at my watch and my pace was 14:51. That's an 8 second decrease. Not good. I walked a few more miles and my pace was 14:40. Not too bad. It made sense that I had just ran a whole 5k and slowed down. I needed to cool off and I decided to head over to my home

- VM software: Virtual Box
- VMWare software: Workstation (legal)
- Key board: I've tried to use a generic MB but I have an official Samsung wired Bluetooth and the supplied USB was interfering with the bluetooth and that was a pain in the butt. The same was with the Onkey touch workstation and touchless keyboard (got for free)

- Zune (or your usual devices) to run the game

The tutorial is good and it does help and do everything you need to do. But you need to pay attention to the messages because sometimes you would watch someone else playing your game and you thought they had done something and, when playing your own game, you can't do what that person did. It gets confusing because sometimes you do see the exact same thing and you thought you did well but when it actually was the other person, you get heartbroken. You need to pay attention to the instructions. It is a learning process and lots of excitement.
