measured the levels of IgD in serum using the mixed anti-IgD antiserum and conventional EIA for serum immunoglobulins. Using a linear regression analysis, a linear regression line ($y=0.96x+2.51$, $r=0.989$) was obtained between the total and free IgD concentrations in the sera of healthy donors. The 95% confidence interval for the standard deviation of the bias between the values obtained by the new EIA and by the conventional assay was less than 3.0%. This EIA is useful for clinical measurements of serum IgD levels.

Categories Meta Epic Epic Games, as a leading game developer and manufacturer of computer games for over a decade, has the highly anticipated 'Epic Games' Fortnite Battle Royale game, released in July 2017. Now, at just 19,000 accounts, Epic claims that the free-to-play battle royale survival game has more than 100 million daily players all over the world. This success is obviously a major breakthrough for Epic's and I'd like to share with you some important insights on how this happened. I tried to answer this question in this blog, and hope you like it. Epic Games' Fortnite Battle Royale success The story begins in June 2017, a month after the release of Fortnite Battle Royale. JavaScript function being called? I have a JavaScript function called 'onClick'. What I can't understand is, it's being called even when I haven't pressed the button. I'm trying to use it to animate a sprite. If it's being called, and

I haven't touched the thing, it must be called when I load the page. What I'm trying to do, is if the user is on the page (the button is hidden), then when they click the button, the CSS changes the size of the image to be transparent. When they click the button again, the CSS is changed back. Here's the script... var oneSecond = 1000; // milliseconds var progress = 0; function onClick() { document.style.backgroundColor = "#F00"; document.style.backgroundColor = "#000"; progress = 1; document.title = "Changing the colour"; } setTimeout(function() { document.title = ""; }, oneSecond); function onAfterChangeBackColor() { var duration = oneSecond * progress; document.title = "Changing the colour back"; for (var i = 0; i
