How to install it in Ubuntu: `sudo apt-get install guix` How to install it in Arch Linux: `pacman -S guix` And about the GUI: By default the data is displayed in the terminal, you have to uncomment two lines in the script that starts `guix-ui.sh`. `#rm /usr/local/bin/guix-gui #ln -s /usr/local/bin/guix-ui.sh /usr/bin/guix-gui.sh` Now you can open `guix-gui.sh` with the builtin text editor and run `guix-gui` in the command line to launch the program.

Serum catecholamine levels in patients with minimal cell adenocarcinoma of the lung. Plasma levels of free, total noradrenaline (NA) and adrenaline (A) were measured in ten patients with surgically-resected minimal cell lung adenocarcinomas. Plasma levels of NA and A were not significantly different from those of normals in either sex. These findings suggest that catecholamine production and/or release is not increased in patients with minimal cell lung adenocarcinoma.
