The program enhances the knowledge and skills of preschool and elementary school teachers and administrators by providing professional development and technical support, and helps parents become involved in activities that support school readiness. This page is your one-stop-shop for more information on the SRP program. Take a look around and discover how SRP supports early child development and works to help children be ready for school. Featured Programs Srp.org A banner on the site directs the reader to the SRP website where they will find all of the information necessary to begin successfully implementing SRP's programs. Am I Eligible for the SRP? According to the website, the SRP is offered free of charge to schools and communities that are eligible for Title I assistance under Title I Title I Title III. This program is administered by the North Carolina Department of Public Instruction The website states the following: The School Readiness Program, or SRP, is a program of the North Carolina Department of Public Instruction and the North Carolina Association for the Education of Young Children which provides professional development and technical support for preschool and elementary school teachers and administrators in the areas of literacy and language development and school readiness instruction. SRP also provides technical assistance to any child care program that serves children in preschool and elementary schools. The SRP has two core components: The Literacy Implementation Project (LIP) provides literacy and language development instruction to preschool and kindergarten teachers; and The School Readiness Project (SRP) builds on the existing school readiness programs at the community, classroom, family, and social levels to support the development of preschool and elementary school children who are learning or will learn to read, spell, listen, and think critically. This component involves developing and implementing a SRP Assessment Tool Kit in the Statewide Assessment of All Children (

I mean $$P(X=x)=P(X=x|Y=x)+P(X=x|Y=-x)$$ Here: $x \in \{ -3, -2,\cdots,3\}$ I'm quite lost, any suggestions? A: Consider the coins to be uniformly distributed on the set $\{ -1,1\}$. Then we have $$P(X=x)=\frac{|\{(x,-x)\}$
