Whos New.Spiral-sac system for adult-onset holoprosencephaly. Holoprosencephaly (HPE) is an anomaly causing severe neurological complications. Genetic causes for HPE are heterogeneous and of prenatal onset. Twelve months old patient with HPE had developed aneurysms of both middle cerebral arteries and presented with intracerebral hemorrhage that was confirmed by brain CT. Therapeutic work-up led to the finding of an extra-axial tumor mass in the sphenoidal region. Aspiration biopsy was made, and histological examination was necessary for a precise diagnosis.

Histopathological examination revealed a neuroepithelial cyst composed of a small sac that contains a single layer of dividing cylindrical cells. The dividing cells formed a plane mirror image of the neuroepithelial cyst with a long axis of plane mirror image that aligned perpendicular to the plane of the capsule. This arrangement is similar to the sagittal symmetry of a normal double-helical whorl. The finding of this "spiral-sac system" led to the clinical diagnosis of the patient, which supports the histomorphologic findings. This article presents the first case of spiral-sac system in HPE.It wasn't until I took your class that I realized how deeply prejudice I had been allowing myself to be a part of. The world is a better place because you did not die under the table! By the end of class I realized that I had never thought of myself as a racist, and I had been using my racism as a coping mechanism. I was a bigot, but not to the degree that I felt it was holding me back. I am confident in your class, where there are no exceptions; the way that you allow your students to own their prejudices shows a level of respect and empathy that I have yet to see anywhere else. I can't believe my eyes. I am sitting in class, as we discuss the final deadline, and my professor is comparing the two worksheets I did. You compare them side-by-side and
