Vascular Risk in Young Adults
(VARYA) Study of 282,042
adults in the United States:
identifying populations at increased risk for vascular risk factors in young adulthood. To determine the population prevalence of traditional risk factors for vascular diseases in young adults. Study subjects were recruited from a nationally representative sample of 293,294 volunteers aged 18-39 years from 16,200 households. Self-reported medical history, including current medication use, was obtained. Body mass index (BMI) and waist circumference were calculated using standardized data collection techniques. Blood pressure was measured and medication use reported. A fasting blood sample was analyzed for total cholesterol, triglycerides, and high-density lipoprotein.

Prevalence estimates were adjusted for design effects and intraclass correlation. A total of 282,042 were interviewed in 1,349 enumeration districts. Of these, 9% were hypertensive, 15% were obese, 14% had elevated cholesterol, and 6% were current smokers. Each of these risk factors was more prevalent in adults younger than 30 years (p of the things that was recorded during the filming of that scene (which they later replaced with a different character), a scene where they wanted to ask her a question about the reason for her staying in the local singles bar. Re: Telstra Gold Customer Care Today, I am so glad to hear about your all reviews about the services and the way of the Telstra Gold Customer Care team. I am a Telstra Gold customer myself.
