BlokDodge is an arcade game that's all about timing. Original story: Recently I picked up an Android phone and went to the Google Play Store to download a game. Instead of downloading another game, Google informed me that they had just released a new game called Block Dash. I wasn't really sure what a game based on blocks was, so I shrugged it off and pressed the "download" button. But after having played through the first 15 levels, I found myself struggling. I couldn't figure out what I was doing wrong. Blocking was too easy, bouncing off of the blocks was easy, but I just couldn't figure out what I was doing wrong. Frustrated, I played through the entire game, trying to figure out what I was doing wrong. So I decided to make the game myself. I'll make all the details about this game available on this website so that anyone could use the code to make a simple game. Just like Block Dash, I have a goal. I want to make this game as easy to learn as possible. Block Dash is in the MakeGames Android app directory, and I'm sure that there are thousands of people who want an easy way to make games on Android. After much trial and error, I think I have come up with a perfect solution. I designed the game to be very easy to learn, but more importantly I designed it to be easy to play. I think that many of the games in the Android marketplace are really well done, but they are often extremely difficult to learn. How easy it is to learn: Once you have downloaded and installed the BLOKDODGE example app, you will be able to play the first level. The first level is extremely easy to learn, and even if you don't make it that far you'll still have a great introduction to how to play the game. You can even play the entire game with your finger by dragging your finger across the screen. I just learned how to do this in a matter of minutes. How easy it is to play: Even though there are no health bars and no lives, the game is still very fun to play. The only goal is to make it to the end of the level. If you get to the end of the level, you'll see a replay screen that shows you how many jumps you made and how many blocks you bounced off of. You don't lose any lives if you get stuck in the middle
