I was at the library the other day and was pulling a book that I had checked out, when this woman came up to me and started talking to me. I tried my best to listen to her, but I found myself zoning out as she spoke. She had the same line every time she spoke. "I have a story that's really going to help you." She paused for a moment and then continued. "I was in the GAA when my niece fell and seriously injured her head. She was thirteen years old. She's now in a vegetative state, and we don't know when she will come out of it. This is a really serious story. If you could tell this to anyone." I couldn't believe it. I didn't even have a heart to speak to her, let alone the time to help her. Instead I said "I'm sorry", and continued my business in the library. I'm just about to head to bed myself. I think this is the time when I'm supposed to go to bed. But as I look at the clock, I can still hear that woman. Her voice is ringing in my ears. The same lines over and over again. I can hear her, but I can't see her. All of a sudden, I was sitting on the edge of my bed, and I thought, "This is ridiculous. I was just sitting there talking to a complete stranger. I think I'm having an episode. I'm not even sure I'm awake." I put my hand on my chest and felt the rush of blood pumping through my body. I thought, "I'm ok. I don't seem to be having a heart attack. With my heart racing and fast paced, I sat still and listened to the woman. I couldn't see her. I couldn't even hear her. I only heard her voice. But, suddenly, I heard her say "It's ok." I listened. "If you could tell this to anyone," she said. She paused. "There are things in life that you don't think twice about. You do them without

Q: What is this spring-like thing near my pool that is moving up and down and jumps? I am at home and noticed a strange looking spring like thing near the pool that is on the deck. I first thought it was a stuck leaf or something but as I went to pick it up it stopped and would spring back down, about 5-6 inches in the air. Then, I would see it be moving from side to side. It isn't anywhere near the end of the spring so I don't think it is a pool float. Here is a picture of the spring back down for comparison. A: It's a mine detector spring. The close-up shows a small metal container in the center. The spring is designed to fly up when a large ferrous (iron) object close to the water is detected. The effect is called resonant vibration. package com.coderising.ood.srp; import org.apache.http.HttpResponse; import org.apache.http.NameValuePair; import org.apache.http.client.HttpClient; import org.apache.http.client.HttpClientBuilder; import org.apache.http.client.entity.UrlEncodedFormEntity; import org.apache.http.client.methods.HttpPost; import org.apache.http.impl.client.CloseableHttpClient; import org.apache.http.message.BasicNameValuePair; import java.io.IOException; public class ServerResource { private CloseableHttpClient client; public ServerResource(HttpClient client) { this.client = client; } public ServerResource() { this.client = HttpClientBuilder.create().build(); } /** * NameValuePairNameValuePair * @param value * @return */ public NameValuePair[] serialize(String[]
