Q: Why is the Movable Type blog so borked on ubuntu 14.04? After upgrading to 14.04, my movable types blog no longer works. I get an error that looks like this: Fatal error: Call to undefined function utf8_decode() in /home/leikit/public_html/mv_c/includes/front-controller.php on line 64 From what I can tell, it's coming from utf8_decode(). If i go to /mv_c/includes/front-controller.php and i search for that function, it comes up with nothing. Any ideas? A: Seems like the function is now called mb_decode_mimeheader() You should try the following: #ini_set('mbstring.http_output', 'UTF-8'); mb_decode_mimeheader('application/json'); If you don't have mbstring.http_output set in your php.ini

According to Peter May, medical director of the Ottawa Community Ambulance Service, the life-saving service is responding to approximately one call per day across the region, and despite its public reputation as a resource that provides emergency medical services, that number is
