Field of the Invention The present invention relates generally to the electro-optical data transmission and, more particularly, to an apparatus and method for correcting errors in data transmission. 2. Description of the Related Art Conventional optical transmission technologies have reached a point at which it is possible to perform reliable, high speed transmission over very long distances. However, this very ability has resulted in the need for very sophisticated protection against failures and faults in optical transmission lines. Accordingly, as transmission networks become more complex and expand in size, it has become increasingly important to find fault-tolerant solutions to the problem of automatically detecting and locating the failure point in the transmission line network. Optical data transmission systems, such as fiber optics, can be subjected to certain types of propagation faults. For example, a break in a fiber can cause transmission loss at the break site. In addition, a break in a fiber or cable can also cause one or more of the fibers in the cable to become detached from its respective connection. When a transmission line fails in such a manner, the two ends of the transmission line are no longer connected, and the transmission line is said to have opened. A transmission line having an open or a short circuit (that is, a circuit in which transmission through the line is interrupted) can cause light pulses traveling along a transmission line to reflect from the open or short circuit, or, alternatively, to be scattered in a manner that causes the pulses to reflect back towards the transmitter. In either case, there is no propagation of the light pulses in the direction of the light source. This results in an output that looks like white noise. If there are sufficient pulses on the line in one direction at the time of the failure, then the reflected pulses will cause consecutive pulses to be suppressed. If there is no power on the

The first part is good, I have a similar string at the end, but the space between the star and the text is different. My question is, how can I make the part before the text in the string be the same? A: Can be done like this: str = str.replace('~+', '~ '); This replaces all characters before a space with an empty string. If you only want to remove this from lines that don't start with the number, you could use this: str = str.replace('~(?!+)$', '$1'); The present invention relates to a new and distinct cultivar of Liriope, botanically known as Liriope spicataxalata, and hereinafter referred to by the name 'SHAMPRA'. The new Liriope plant is a product of a planned breeding program conducted by the Inventor in Hikone, Shiga, Japan. The objective of the breeding program is to create new outwardly spreading Liriope plants with numerous attractive flowers. The new Liriope plant originated from a cross-pollination made by the Inventor in March, 2004 in Hikone, Shiga, Japan of a proprietary selection of Liriope spicataxalata identified as code number 3314, not patented, as the female, or seed, parent with a proprietary selection of Liriope spicataxalata identified as code number 2092, not patented, as the male, or pollen, parent. The new Liriope plant was discovered and selected by the Inventor as a single flowering plant within the progeny of the stated cross-pollination in a controlled environment in Bonsall, Calif. in April, 2005. Asexual reproduction of the new Liriope plant by cuttings in a controlled environment in Bonsall, Calif. since April, 2005, has shown that the unique features of this new Liriope plant are stable and reproduced true to type in successive generations. The Civil Rights division of the Justice Department has appointed a former U.S. attorney from Tennessee to oversee an investigation into the Ferguson police department's handling of the shooting death of Michael Brown in August. The move came after the U.S. Justice Department in November released a report on the Michael Brown shooting that found the Ferguson, Missouri, police department used excessive force against the
