Binary emulsion explosives compositions which are insensitive to shock are of considerable interest for military applications. Conventional insensitive explosive compositions have high sensitivity and accordingly, once initiated, they cannot be easily disrupted by shock or other impulses. Thus, for instance, the initiation of explosives by a signal from an enemy missile is of considerable concern to the military because the initiation signal is readily detected and the initiation point can be determined. In contrast to this, the initiation of a signal from a friendly ship's power plant to initiate the explosive charges in her ordnance does not create concern because the power plant is under the control of the ship. The present invention relates to relatively small amounts of an emulsifier which serves to emulsify the oxidizer and fuel components of the emulsion into which they are blended in a specific proportion to give a binary emulsion explosive composition. The emulsifier also serves to prevent the separation of the emulsion into its components, especially upon aging of the composition, by migrating to the interface between the oxidizer and fuel components of the emulsion. Various emulsifiers for binary explosive emulsions are known. For instance, U.S. Pat. No. 3,962,424 discloses a binary emulsion containing chloroform as an emulsifier for the oxidizer and fuel components. Although satisfactory compositions employing the chloroform emulsifier have been obtained, the compositions have limited shelf life because the oxidizer component migrates to the interface of the emulsion upon aging. .Q: How to read a string in java hi i wrote a program that prints

the numbers from 0 to 9.

now i want to write the program in java. So what i did is that i made a string and stored the letters in
it. Now in order to make the program read the characters that the string store i use the `getchar()` method and print them. but the problem is that the number of characters stored is different from the number of characters that i

---

need for the program. How can i fix this. A: You can count the characters with this function

```
public int countChars(String aString){
    int charCount = 0;
    for(char c : aString.toCharArray()){
        if(c == ' ' || c == '\t' || c ==
            =='" || c == '\r' || c ==
            '\u000b' || c == '\u000e'){
            charCount++;
        }
    }
    return charCount;
```
