But just being 45 will forever be considered the conventional wisdom that Mike McCarthy is too old to be an NFL head coach. That's not necessarily true, as someone like Bill Belichick or John Fox prove. Still, McCarthy is in his 30s. And many fans, reporters and others don't want to believe he's good enough for the job. He's too inexperienced. He's too old. He's a veteran manager with no NFL head coaching experience. In time, they will see that McCarthy is a deep thinker, a bold thinker, who has a grasp of the game and players and is willing to take risks. He's a very smart guy, and if you ever wonder why Bill Belichick and Mike Tomlin become NFL coaches, they often credit his brain. Those who knew McCarthy when he was a student coach at the University of Georgia said he'd have the best insight of any coach they knew back then. And that included Steve Spurrier, the coach he emulated in college. The thing is, McCarthy always was tough and confident. But that wasn't real until he reached the NFL. McCarthy is the youngest coach in the NFL. He's also the best. He's won a Super Bowl. He's won a division title. He's found ways to win in the toughest circumstances. Yes, he's had a few of those 8-8 seasons, and there's a reason for that. But he's won when the odds were against him. He's won when his quarterback was injured. He's won when his roster was depleted.

He's had his fair share of one-score games in the second half. But he's won. Moreover, he's done it with a roster devoid of big-time talent. By that, I mean the 'Steelers had only five

“Hofbräuhaus street”. Trams Hofbräuhausrathstraße was one of the original tram lines that was opened in 1876 and finished its life in 1984. It was an important link to the city centre, situated at the current location of the Maternikirche. The line has been running since its first opening and was closed in 1984. Bus Hofbräuhausrathstraße is served by the buses of the Rhenish Autobahnbus, which links Dortmund city centre with the Ruhr area to the north-east
