In this case, the State, but for a single document, showed (1) that the two defendants were members of the same family and lived in the same household, (2) that one of the brothers lived in a place of prostitution, (3) that the State had recorded the location from which its investigation was made and that it was a known place of prostitution, and (4) that the officers found the condoms and inositol in the defendant's laundry basket that the other brother used for his laundry. A search of the police log disclosed that the video was recorded the morning the search warrant was executed. The video was admitted and played during trial. Over the defendant's objection, the officers testified to the following statements the videotape made: (1) that the brother picked up a prostitute, (2) that the brother's pager was picked up by the same prostitute, and (3) that the brother told the officers that he would see them in the morning. Defense counsel requested that a cautionary instruction be given to the jury regarding the previous references to prostitution.

The trial court agreed but then refused to give the
