Description:Q: Do I need a class or structured query before searching a List? I have a list of items and I am getting all of them using a search term. However, I am unsure as to whether this is the correct way to do this or not. List blogs = GetAllBlogsBySearch(searchTerm); foreach (var blog in blogs) { // Do something with blog object } First question is does this involve a class? Or should I have a structure query? Second question is should my foreach loop use the GetAllBlogsBySearch() method or should that be passed as a parameter? A: I'm a little suspicious that you're simply looking to return all the blogs and not further filter your results. I'm not sure what your GetAllBlogsBySearch() method is actually returning (the code isn't visible), but if you're simply getting back all the blogs for all search terms then I would suggest doing something like this: List blogs = GetAllBlogsBySearch(searchTerm); // select only the blogs which match the search term var results = blogs.Where(x => x.SearchTerm.Equals(searchTerm)); foreach (var blog in results) { // Do something with blog object } If it's more complicated than that then you'll want to explain what you actually need to do with all of the blogs which match the search term.). I am using php5.3, and I am inserting a value in mysql asutf8, but still I cannot get the right value printed. A: use nl2br() to wrap a string in html tags. example $str = "this is your string"; $str = nl2br($str); As a side note ucwords() outputs a slug. It will change all letters, words and symbols to lowercase, as well as remove the following characters in the string: .
