Laying down a few tools After you create a new document, you'll be using tools that allow you to manipulate a photo. One of the easiest and most versatile tools is the Selection tool. It's the most versatile tool in Photoshop because it can do almost anything, from selecting an object and moving it to selecting an entire image and making it transparent. You can use it to crop photos, as you see in the later section "Selecting and cropping a photo." You can also use it to give an image a new look by using the same tool to select only the face of an image or any objects within the image that you want to make disappear. You can even add another layer (a copy of the original image) to the bottom of an image — which makes it appear as if the image is floating on top of the one underneath it. The tool even allows you to edit selections by making them transparent

10^{-2} and 5% of the core total mass ($M_{\rm c}$) are lost during the phase of mass gain and expansion. Therefore, there should be many Type Ib/c SNe without accompanying GRBs detected in this range. For the models with $M_{\rm c,0} = 10\text{--}40\text{ }M_{\odot}$ and $M_{\rm c,0} = 40\text{--}70\text{ }M_{\odot}$, the energy of the ejecta can reach $10^{51}\text{--}10^{52}\text{ ergs}$, respectively. This can be explained by the fact that the heavier the $M_{\rm c,0}$ is, the larger the total mass of the ejecta is. In the models of $M_{\rm c,0} = 10\text{--}40\text{ }M_{\odot}$ and $M_{\rm c,0} = 40\text{--}70\text{ }M_{\odot}$, the maximum velocities of the outer ejecta are $3 \times 10^4\text{ km s}^{-1}$ and $1.4 \times 10^4\text{ km s}^{-1}$, respectively, and they are comparable to the maximum velocities of $3 \times 10^3\text{ km s}^{-1}$ and $1.1 \times 10^3\text{ km s}^{-1}$ obtained in the more massive ejecta model of $M_{\rm c,0} = 70\text{--}100\text{ }M_{\odot}$. The reason for the smallest explosion energy found in the model of $M_{\rm c,0} = 70\text{--}100\text{ }M_{\odot}$ is that the SN Ic explosion model with the $70\text{--}100\text{ }M_{\odot}$ core is the same as that of $30\text{--}40\text{ }M_{\odot}$ in the W7 model of @nomoto1984. The ejecta structure of the SN Ic explosion model with the $70\text{--}100\text{ }M_{\odot}$ core with the single degenerate model is not suitable for the model with the $70\text{--}100\text{ }M_{\odot}$ core, because the mass of the SN Ic ejecta is small
