I do not start work until 9:30, leaving me with ample time to work out and play around in the gym. All-in-all, I am about 300 pounds overweight and need to lose about 80 pounds... So I have been doing pretty good on diet but the longer I stay on it, the more self conscious I become about it. Yes, I know I could lose it but I'm not comfortable with the society judgment. I was set a goal of 90 pounds to lose and I haven't been accomplishing that. I'm seeing that if I don't make some positive changes, I'll just end up sicker, lower-energy, depressed, and smaller. One of the biggest reasons I don't put in the time is I don't feel like I'm accomplishing anything. However, I know that if I put in the time now, I can lose 90 pounds by summer. Also, I will not stop going to the gym until I lose the weight. Now the question I have for you is: What is your motivation for keeping it going? How do you cope with criticism? Are there any tips you have found helpful in keeping you going when times get tough?Colm O'Kinneide Colm O'Kinneide (born 17 October 1963 in Bandon, County Cork, Ireland) is an Irish sportsperson. He played Gaelic football with his local club Aghada and was a member of the Kerry senior inter-county team in the 1980s and 1990s. Early life and club O'Kinneide was born in Bandon, County Cork in 1963. He was educated at the Rockwell National School in Kilmaley, where he took his first steps in Gaelic football and was later an All-Star player with the Bandon club in the junior grades. His father, Martin, was a well-known hurler with the Bandon club. Martin retired in 2007 after 50 years of playing and coaching. Colm's brother, Tim, who played for Bandon in the 1980s, was also on the Bandon senior team.
