PHASE 1: DRAWING THE MAPS, CREATING THE STORYLINE, and PREPARING THE LODGES. Drafting the game's main world was made after detailed planning. When we could not find a suitable building and scenery from the existing city environment, we had to construct it. At this time, we were challenged to reinterpret the existing world of Corundum and create a new one, which was gradually being revealed. The world is a place full of adventure. The adventurers are always eager to explore it. In the map drawing phase, our map designer combined the existing map that was used in the Realm of Corundum with the expansion of land in the north where the wilderness still exists and created a kind of style that showed the feeling of an ancient civilization. In the process of drafting the storyline, since we didn't want to make changes in the actual content, we had to make changes in the narrative. When we were researching the lore in the website, we saw the existing world's paths of development based on our map and culture. At the same time, as we were building the world, we developed a story in response to the reading of other people. As mentioned earlier, we did not create a world full of mystery with many questions left unsolved. Instead, we decided to reveal a world of clear rules, with only a few questions to be answered. In order to raise the sense of mystery and to prevent players from choosing the wrong path, we decided to show them the entirety of the world in the beginning. Once the players have built a detailed knowledge of the world, they can use their experience to select their favorite path to proceed. Because we decided that our world is a kind of fairy tale world with a touch of fantasy, we made a world with a simple storyline from the beginning. We also decided that the times of World of Legend and World of Empire would appear, and the history of the new land has begun. Through the series of adventures, we can create a fantasy world for our players that has a sense of history. We also decided that we could have a larger variety of places in our game than in previous games, and could expand the city, making it even bigger. In addition, since the world was imagined while considering the location where the capital of Tarnished Kingdom would be placed, we thought that it would be fun to have the capital be a huge city, and we decided

Using inexpensive, readily available materials, we designed and demonstrated a wide variety of naked-eye and fluorescence-based biosensors using substrates made of chemically inert gold nanowires (Au NWs) embedded in copper oxide. These nanotechnology-supported sensors, exploiting NW- and nanostructure-based physics, chemical affinity and nanoscale surface location, may serve as a new class of "robust" and well-directed biosensors that are largely independent of instrumentation and inorganic coatings, can be fabricated in various shapes, exhibiting tunable affinity, and may ultimately be employed as "chips" in surfaces or incorporated into complex
