Introduction With the introduction of AutoCAD 2018, the only desktop CAD application available on Windows 10 and Windows 8, users can now enjoy these benefits: No more USB dongles! AutoCAD can be used from any USB port without the need to change the default configuration for a USB port. Using the latest version of Windows 10, now available in all Windows 10, version 1803 (April 2018 Update), users no longer need to use a 3rd party USB dongle to connect their CAD application to the computer. You can simply plug your computer in to any USB port and AutoCAD will immediately recognize it and start. You can also configure AutoCAD to automatically start when your computer starts ("always on"). New PC in a Box service AutoCAD can now be installed on any supported computer system and configured to create drawings, presentations, and documents. AutoCAD can be configured to run in a "PC in a Box" experience, delivering a complete, pre-configured Windows operating system with AutoCAD and applications. Autodesk provides this service to customers around the world and provides upgrades for existing users at no charge. Bringing the full power of AutoCAD Through the use of multi-core CPUs, GPUs, and other processing systems, AutoCAD can now operate at significantly faster speeds and run applications with significantly higher precision and fidelity than earlier versions. Support for the full spectrum of formats With support for new vector and bitmap file formats, users can save and open CAD files on the same system as AutoCAD. Access to the powerful AutoCAD scripting environment Programmers can now write AutoCAD scripts that enhance the user experience and automate repetitive tasks. Autodesk Script Studio provides a simple-to-use tool for creating and debugging AutoCAD scripts. Support for multiple, concurrent users AutoCAD 2018 now supports concurrent use by multiple users.
