Anari hindi Â· Hindi Dubbed in English Ajnabi gharana movie 2015. Bollywood movie.This invention relates generally to a shield for encasing and protecting electrical leads of a lead, and more particularly to a shielding device for encasing and protecting the electrical leads of a variable geometry lead or catheter. Catheters are widely used for various types of procedures which require surgical intervention, such as coronary artery bypass grafting, angioplasty, and the placement of pacemakers. These catheters are used in many locations in the body. During the placement of these catheters, it is necessary to temporarily or permanently remove the catheter from the body. For example, during a bypass procedure, it is necessary to remove the catheter after a graft vessel has been sewn to the coronary artery. In order to do so, the lead or catheter must be shielded to protect the patient from the shock produced by the electrical current which is used in the procedures to operate pacemakers. It is also necessary to protect the patient and the medical staff from the electrical current which is used in the procedure. Thus, it is necessary to provide an effective shielding device which, in addition, is also capable of being locked in place once it is in position. It is also important that the shielding device remain locked in place and that it be capable of being easily and efficiently used. It is further desirable that the shielding device be manufactured as inexpensively as possible, and have the fewest moving parts possible. One example of a prior art shielding device is set forth in

U.S. Pat. No. 5,666,945 to Cannady et al. The Cannady et al. shielding device includes a lead body having a handle portion and a cable connector. A sleeve and a shell are assembled over the lead body, with the shell being held in place by a strap. The sleeve has a collar and a plurality of tabs which extend axially through the collar and engage a jaw in the shell to prevent the sleeve from being separated from the shell. The lead body is sealed with the shell through the use of an o-ring. However, the Cannady et al. shielding device
