Overlooked, apparently, are the other qualities one might acquire in their years of overnursing and overfilling: a bit of wisdom; a sense of humor; and an ability to enjoy something called “home entertaining” — even if that’s not actually the part of aging you want to spend your twilight years doing. As it turns out, the boomers are about to spend their twilight years doing something they probably didn’t anticipate doing: “begging” from their parents and grandparents. The answer is, probably, no.
