CUTVIEWER is a 3D visualization program for CAD.Q: finding max of file size with file header I am trying to find the max file size with file header in LFS mode. I have put some code here: #include #include #include #include int main(int argc, char *argv[]) { struct stat my_stat; printf("%d ",stat("statme.tmp", &my_stat)); return 0; } But the return value of stat is 100, not 104 as it should be.. Does anyone know the reason why, I am on Ubuntu machine running from root account. The size of statme.tmp before I execute the program is 104 kb. So what could be the problem? I have tried executing this program from the terminal and the same problem occurs. A: This has nothing to do with file system limits. stat does not return the size of
