This is one of the most popular texts in Assamese literature. This book was first published in October-November 1911. 100 years have passed since the first publication. On this anniversary, the Assamese embassy in London hosted a memorial ceremony that, according to the ambassador, "would be an honor to any embassy." The ceremony was attended by the Ambassador of Pakistan to the UK. The Assamese Text was published in 1911 in the Ashari newspaper under the title "Testamental Prayer". It was written in 1912. The will is dated October 13, 1912. According to the Testament Prayer (Assam. "Ashari-i-hriah"), Amar Singh died on the same day.
