Discography (1955 2009).rarQ:
How to make my template be docked to a panel in my main window form with the rest of the elements of the form I'm developing a project in Delphi XE2, in which I created a new form with a single label, one panel and one timer. I used a TImage to show a JPEG loaded from a file. I want to make this TImage docked to the panel so it looks like it is a part of the panel. How can I do this? I don't want to use the north panel because I don't want the rest of the elements of the form visible at the top of the form. A: Forms are created for convenience. They often contain many panels, but it is rather inconvenient to add or remove from them. You can create a form and dock it directly to a panel or window. Add a docked panel and add your form to the form's top right corner. Then add the panel to the form. Use the form's construction. Q: Javascript not running in IE I have this javascript which grabs a row from a database and displays it in my web application. It works in all browsers except IE. Here's the code: `$("#listItem").change(function(){ c6a93da74d`
