Aspi Driver Windows 7 64 Bit Download BETTER

1. Start SIREN Jukebox 2. Click on Options 3. Hold down your Shift-key then click on Preferences 4. Release the Shift-Key 5. Click on the new tab showing called Internal 6. Scroll down and look for something called Use Aspi (disable on NT only) section. This should be the 6 paragraph or so. Even though it looks like an Excel spreadsheet, each blank line I consider that a paragraph 7. If you are using Windows 7 x64 use the follwing This software performs the Automatic Image Orientation function for Simplified Chinese, Traditional Chinese, Korean and Russian when using Application Software and/or Interface Drivers. The Automatic Image Orientation function can be used for TWAIN driver, ISIS driver and Image Capture Plus. Also this software performs the searchable PDF creation function, High-compression PDF function andOCR zone function used only for Image Capture Plus. It will not function independently. Something must be very wrong with the SPTI support of this software, shouldnt need to rely on ASPI at all. But it seems Siren Jukebox is roughly from the same time as the Xing AudioCatalyst Im using, which doesnt support SPTI at all. Guess its a problem Sonic Foundry had during the ASPI->SPTI transition time and never got to fix really ASPI32.SYS file is the ASPI module for the ASPI driver, this file was created automatically when installing the ASPI driver and is a hidden file. Make sure to add the folder c:\Adaptec\astd32 to your system PATH environment variable, or to your Windows Search path as well. ASPI32.SYS was created automatically for every ASPI driver installed. Only the ASPI32.SYS file for the ASPI driver you want to use needs to be copied to the c:\Adaptec\astd32 directory. The ASPI32.SYS file can also be copied anywhere, but this directory makes it easier.
