Coupled with the XP theme, it makes it look classy and flamboyant. Internet Explorer 5 debuted in Windows 2000 Beta, and shipped in SP1. Internet Explorer 5 included a new tab view which contained a row of thumbnails, and one column of recently visited sites. It also included bookmark/favorite/personal/privacy settings. Even though it only took 5 months to release Windows 2000, Microsoft had been working on it for a while, and came out with more features than even they may have expected. Windows 2000 also saw the debut of Windows 2000 Pro, which could be used as a commercial thin client system. Windows 2000 RTM included Security Update Framework, which provides the ability for a root or Administrator account to lock user accounts. GDI+ came to Windows 2000. The desktop application also has the ability to place pixels in the image. This was also the first version of Windows 2000 to use the Wow64 processor mode, which provides 32 bit compatibility for applications and files that use 32 bit version of Windows. Windows 2000 included all of the features which it had previewed in Beta, but had proven particularly successful in development. Initially, the company hoped to have Windows 2000 released in time for the new Microsoft's consumer version of Windows XP, codenamed Athens. However, by the time Athens was ready, the Internet-driven demand for Windows 2000 was so intense, Microsoft had to ramp up the production to keep up with the demand. Microsoft has officially shipped Windows 2000. The distribution package came in two editions Windows 2000 Standard and Windows 2000 Professional. Microsoft partnered with various hardware and software companies including ASUS, Abit, Adaptec, D-Link, AT&T, Everex, Linksys, Mitac, OmniStar, and QoS.
