MagicDraw's automatic report generation engine rapidly produce comprehensive, professional requirements, software design documentation, and other types of reports in HTML, PDF, and RTF formats. MagicDraw generates standard artifacts that match your software development process. The report engine allows you to generate up-to-date reports based on your own templates with layout and formatting specified. MagicDraw makes it easy to generate such documentation, if you're working on a complex project, you can present the same information as a document, or a book. If you select a codebase and a version, the engine automatically generates an overview of the complete design. When you choose to export a report as HTML, or PDF, MagicDraw generates the corresponding files. In addition to the free SDK, in 2009, there was added a command line program designed to generate automatically (e.g. data, modeling or any type of report). The program called MagicDraw is distributed as a command line executable. SDK includes a command line version of the product. This executable is a useful addition to the integrated
