la derniere lp, the most wanted man in the world (1969) -- this disc, most likely the recording by which the name mongo santamaria will be known to many of you, was recorded in the mid-sixties. i was lucky to see him perform this live in the mid 70's and i was also lucky to see him perform this at the world famous apollo theater in harlem. i have more video of this concert than any concert i have ever seen. his band was tight and his voice was incredible. the bass player even took a break in the middle of his song and used his trumpet and played with him for a few seconds. he has the ability to tap dance and play the piano and play his trumpet like he was a one man band. he was a true master of the musical world. he could sing in the church and play in the nightclub. but the most important thing i know about mongo santamaras life and career is that he was dedicated to his religion and a great humanitarian. he would sometimes perform at childrens hospitals and hospitals and would sing in spanish, french and english. in 1969 i was hired to start a band called "mongo santamaria and the salsa happening" and we played all over new york city. i have pictures of the band, mongo, and myself at the apollo theater. the box office employee told me that there were people in line at 10:30 a.m. for the apollo to see mongo santamaria and the salsa happening and that is when i started to plan and call my friends in new york to make sure we got tickets. i have never forgotten what the apollo theater means to so many people. it has been my home for over 30 years. thank you mr. west for bringing mongo santamaras music to the world. god bless you.

a compilation of mongo santamarias best live performances from the 1960s and 1970s. it features the best music from santamarias first two albums with the legendary fania all stars, plus some great afro-cuban and salsa songs recorded in nyc. in 1967, mongo santamaria and his partners in fania all stars formed a group that was destined to become a legend in latin music. the a&r man for the label, ralph mercado, had other plans in mind. at the time, mercado was the manager of fania all stars, and he saw in mongo a potential star. but the musical and business worlds were at odds. for example, mongo was signed to a long-term contract with a producer, who wasnt interested in his musical development. and elvin jones, the greatest drummer of his generation, had taken an enormous salary cut from fania to join the band. in 1968, mercado was replaced, and the fania all stars were now under the direct control of sony music. mongo santamaria had been the perfect partner in crime. but they werent the same anymore. mongo santamaria has been around since the 1950s, playing rumba, cha cha, and a variety of other

'afro-cuban' sounds. he is an instrumentalist of the highest caliber, and his albums reflect that. this cd reissue features top-notch musicians on top-notch arrangements of some of santamaras greatest tracks. the cd also features some early recordings of a young mongo with a young tito puente, and some excellent arrangements from a time when a cuban/euro-jazz connection was still being forged. tito puente debut (rca victor, 1955) the first of a fabulous series of 12-inch lps put out by rca victor. mongo and tito are pictured on the cover. this is a great combo, and this album is certainly no slouch. the tinges of the mambo swing sound are still detectable, but this has more of a latin jazz feel to it. mongo is a bit more of a showman here, while tito sounds a little more thoughtful and introspective. but in the end, they both get the job done, and if you get a chance to hear this lp, do it! 5ec8ef588b
