Yes, we can. This can take up to 2 minutes. You will receive an email from our system confirming that we have added your key. You can check this email in your spam box, or View Spam box in the same place where you manage your email. Once you see it, mark it as Not Spam and it will be delivered to your mailbox normally. Once you confirm your email address, we will send you an activation key for your game. This will be direct download, depending on the store. The delivery of the key can take up to 24 hours. Once your key is delivered, it will be displayed in your download account. You can download and play your game immediately after activation is complete. In case your email is missing, don't worry. You can easily resend it to support@gog.com. You don't need to download or resend the game - it will appear in your account automatically when your key is delivered. The game has a slightly more cerebral approach to gameplay than most games of this genre and is a lot of fun to play. I found the game gave me a lot more to think about after I had died than games like Call of Duty. SpyParty also has some interesting and rarely used modes of gameplay which I enjoyed, and if you are looking for a game to play while you are sitting in an airport then this is a good choice. When I was playing SpyParty in its alpha release, there were a lot of people that felt it was unfair, just like in the Call Of Duty series. I don't see what the big deal is, if you take the play style of COD and mix it up with the target detection of something like Pinball, it is pretty similar to that game. I would not suggest players try to play competitively with the release version, it will be much better once the Map Maker is in place and there are skins and items for the players to use.
