What's New in the Generate Folder?

GenerateFolder is a tiny little utility. It's sole purpose is to generate folders for a document. Once the folder is created, and the document is moved to it, it can be renamed if desired. Registry Worked and Implemented Well. Overall, everything is working fine. There is nothing that I have found that is broken or out of place. I noticed one thing, when I first installed, it had a 30 second delay whenever it did anything. I couldn't be sure if it was the program causing this, or the fact that I have a high speed internet connection. Well, to be fair, it isn't exactly slow. It just takes about 10 seconds to load the program and create the folder. As for the delay, the delay was caused by the program having to check the location of the downloaded file. Most everything worked, as expected, but I also noted that it had some issues with the Windows registry. There are two spots where there were entries created, the first is labeled as "GenerateFolder.dll". The other is labeled as "GenerateFolder.Registry". As for the former, it was created properly. However, the latter was only created for about 30 seconds, and the second time the registry was reset, it was removed as well. Once this happened, and after I was finished using the application, I was able to delete both entries, so nothing is wrong. The application does not store anything on your system or internet, as well. I can confirm that there are no log files to store information in, and I'm also unable to find anything in the Windows\System32 folder, or the Program Files folder. So, I can say with confidence that nothing is stored or uploaded. Pros: + No installation is required. The application requires no setup and it does not store any information on the system or internet. + The application is easy to use, there is no need to setup any options or tweak any settings. + The application doesn't store anything on the computer it is installed on. + The program has the ability to easily create and move folders. + The program is small and effective. - The application is not free. + The application has no timer, and it does not allow users to delete directories. - The program does not allow users to delete files. - The program can't create or move documents to folders, so if this is what a user desires then the program can't do it. - The folder generation is not counted as a complete directory creation. - The folder creation is counted as a file move. - The user can't delete folders. - The user can't delete files. - The user can't delete sub-directories. in my folder the programs name
