The 59-year-old former actor was an outsider at the Conservative party's annual conference this week, because the party decided to go with the party's deputy chairman, the former Labour MP Michael Gove. Tommy Robinson, the founder of the far-right EDL, had previously been strongly critical of a number of Labour MPs on social media, including Keir Starmer, who recently defended anti-fascism protest through stunts such as a naked protest run. "I just felt a bit out of place being surrounded by guys and girls... that I was completely at ease with," Robinson told the Mirror. "Obviously, I had my views but I wanted to do something different. I wanted to do something that was a bit more fun." "I wanted to do something that made people smile and had an element of fun." Robinson, who is also now an MEP for the Yorkshire and Humber region, said he got "th
