Backup GitHub repositories in mere seconds Share this:Click to Tweet If you are an avid PC gamer, you are probably aware of the fact that there are many streaming services available online today. However, some of the services are proprietary, while others are not. Because of this, you are not be able to stream these games on different devices. New services: Choose and click There are many online services that allow you to stream games, however some of them are proprietary, meaning that you need to install software on the PC, in order to be able to stream games from this particular service. However, we should be thankful that today there are plenty of services that allow us to stream games from the web, directly from the browser, without any software to be installed. A relatively new service, known as New Game Streaming, is quite interesting for those who love gaming on the PC. The service is a free, subscription-based service that allows users to enjoy unlimited games on their PC. No software to be installed, no subscription to be paid, and it is completely ad-free. To enjoy games with this service, all you need is a PC, any gaming-capable device, and the New Game Streaming app. Other services such as Uplay, Gamefly and Xbox Game Pass are also quite popular, although not necessarily because of their compatibility with other devices. Many of these streaming services are also open-source, meaning that you can use them for your own private needs. You can use these services, for example, to stream PC games and play them on your TV. To conclude, if you have a PC, then you probably have access to some of the services mentioned in the article. It may also be helpful to know that these services do not provide any subscription services. New Game Streaming Share this:Click to Tweet Software apps are quite important, whether for work or for leisure. They are designed to make a person’s life easier. Download the free trial version, Try Now and experience all the powerful features at your fingertips! If you ever wanted to backup your GitHub repositories to a local storage, then you surely know that finding an appropriate software for this particular type of job is not the easiest of tasks. Backup GitHub repositories in mere seconds Fortunately, you can turn to Gibu, a very practical, little application that's designed to provide you with one of the easiest (if not the easiest) way of backing up all your GitHub repositories. To get started with Gibu, you first need to install it on your computer, a fairly straightforward, very similar to that of most other modern apps. Once launched, you are greeted by a very intuitive 4-step wizard that guides you through the configuration process. Makes backing up GitHub repos feel like a walk in the park For starters, you need to generated a GitHub Token from your GitHub account. This can be done by accessing the Personal access tokens page. The second step involves entering the token into the app. Next, simply select the backup directory (either a local drive, or an external one), and finish the configuration. Subsequent to the configuration process, you can now access the app's main GUI, the place where you can select the repositories you want to backup from a dropdown list. You can hand-pick them or backup all the repositories together. The app also boasts a very simplistic menu (located in the upper left side of the main window). From the menu, you can change the token, as well as the destination for your GitHub repos. Simple, efficient, and fast GitHub repo backup tool To conclude, Gibu is a minimalist, yet extremely efficient app that allows just about anyone (regardless of the computer knowledge) to quickly backup GitHub repositories.
