Will be used as extracurricular activity to offer skills, encourage social change, and spark a passion for learning When your kids graduate, the work is still far from over. There are all kinds of next steps. But there is one place they don't have to begin: school. Each of the 511 independent schools in the Los Angeles Unified School District can be a place where students can work to learn real-world skills. That's why we're asking LAUSD parents, teachers, staff, students and community partners to help us build the LAUSD Educators Skills Academy at Night (EDSA-N) - a pilot program for at-home learning. Watch the video to learn more about what the project is, how you can get involved, and how you can make sure this new program will change the way that your child or students are educated.
