KeyMacro provides end-users with the ability to record sequences of keyboard commands in a simple to use macro, format, and playback system. Users can quickly record keyboard sequences such as mouse clicks and pass-words to automate any repetitive task, or they can use the software to create macros to automate their computer tasks. macro recording & playback Save time. The intuitive interface makes it easy to record your keyboard and mouse events in any application, then playback those events when you need them. Simply set up macro tasks such as a simple mouse click to open a specific application, or a lengthy text entry. Then record the commands in any application, including word processing, web browsing, or any application you use frequently. To create or edit your macros, just hit the recorder icon. When a sequence of events is saved, the icon changes to a timeline view. Simply mouse over to play your recorded event, or select multiple events to play them at once. Customizable categories and keyboard shortcuts make it easy to perform tasks in any program you use frequently. Exporting macros macros can be exported and imported using the same simple interface. To export a macro, simply hit the Export button. To import a macro, select the macro file and click the Import button. Macros can be exported as an image or as a text file, making them useful for scripting in batch processing applications. The program can handle up to 5 simultaneously recorded macros, so you don't have to worry about using up your recording limit. Keyboard events including mouse clicks and keystrokes are recorded with millisecond precision, which makes it possible to recreate even minor movements of your mouse or keyboard, making macros very accurate. The User Manual is included in the folder.
