Golf is enjoyed by a wide variety of players—players of different genders and dramatically different ages and/or skill levels. Golf is somewhat unique in the sporting world in that such diverse collections of players can play together in golf events, even in direct competition with one another (e.g., using handicapped scoring, different tee boxes, in team formats, etc.), and still enjoy the golf outing or competition. These factors, together with the increased availability of golf programming on television (e.g., golf tournaments, golf news, golf history, and/or other golf programming) and the rise of well known golf superstars, at least in part, have increased golf's popularity in recent years, both in the United States and across the world. Golfers at all skill levels seek to improve their performance, lower their golf scores, and reach that next performance “level.” Manufacturers of all types of golf equipment have responded to these demands and improvements by providing new golf equipment. For example, a typical set of golf clubs may include a driver that leads off a set of shafts, several irons, a set of wedges, and a putter. Golf is often a difficult game to learn, especially for a novice golfer. Improper use of golf clubs or arms during the swing can cause damage to the golfer. Additionally, when a club impacts a golf ball, sometimes the club may rebound in a manner that causes the club to move in a direction other than what was intended by the golfer. A: Yeah. We haven't had a whole lot of trouble with that. It's just a bit of an odd, raw spot for us. This, of course, is not the first time this has happened to us. We were playing at the Hampton Coliseum, in Virginia, in 2007, and the third quarter came and we led 14-0, but lost the game because we didn't score a single point the rest of the game. We won the next seven games, but that's the first time we were just like, “OK, man, we've been in this situation before.” We know it's possible, but we just can't afford it. Q: So this is a long time for a team that hasn't won. How does the coaching staff try to work through f988f36e3a
