I searched on Google for a Windows 8.1 wallpaper, but I couldn't find anything that was quite right. Then I found this Maverick theme. I'm liking it. I don't know what the author's background is, but it looks like a serene mountain or something. So, what do you think? Would you like to see more Windows 8.1 theme ideas?

Bean Shells 1. I made this last summer for a school activity. I found some left over bean shells at the grocery store (in case you are wondering: yes, these are actual beans that are shell shaped). 2. I'd like to see what you all have to offer in terms of using these in a craft. But, this was too good not to share!

What's New In Maverick Theme?

Contains abstract designs made up of colorful and bright shapes Supports Windows 7 and Windows 8.1 Easy to install and use Great for the eyes and senses Change the look and feel of your PC Available for free, the author of Maverick Theme will be pleased to hear any feedback from users who like the theme. Hey guys, thanks for the review. I've released a new version. This version is actually a beta version. The final version will be released soon. But I've added new features in this version. I've made the mouse theme more attractive and changed a little bit in the design of the taskbar. Interesting, I'm going to look into this and perhaps release one later on when I've had more time to test it. I have another theme (Matador) that will eventually make its way to Windows, this is of course a very welcome addition. :) I'll check it out, but when will it be available? I'm fine with the.zip file, no need to make a.exe. I'll also upload a new Windows icon pack, you can simply download the one with a blue X and extract it. If I were you, I wouldn't want to use this, as it can cause some problems, as I just tested it on a friend's laptop, and it didn't work. I can assure you that it's not cause of the.zip file, it actually works fine with the.zip, and if it was, the installer would have stated as such. I've been using Windows 8.1 since its beta, and found it to be quite pleasant. I have had various problems with Ubuntu 12.10 and Unity, which used to be my primary environment, but I have settled on using Kubuntu 12.10. When I came across this theme, I was very intrigued to see that it was something I could use to get a similar feel as I'm used to in Ubuntu. I ran the theme on a friend's new laptop (which is what prompted me to even test it), and while I didn't test it on an old computer, I saw that the icons were pretty much the same, so I figured this would be a nice introduction to the theme. Unfortunately, it didn't work. The taskbar still remained its original color (as per the default settings), as well as the desktop icons. In addition, when I hover over the desktop icons, they don't change to the same color, and they don't seem to change in the theme's color scheme either. Sorry about that, I figured it should work. If I remember correctly, you could tell that there was something wrong with this theme, because of the color schemes that were in the desktop (this is about the time that I remembered that the theme wasn't working), so I just thought that maybe it
