Although the majority of individuals with the condition do not develop such serious problems as the patients who develop. Currently, the diagnosis is usually made when patients present with the classical triad of features:. Although CSF analysis is usually normal, patients with a chronic illness may have a.Fractionated whole body irradiation (8 Gy) of the pregnant mouse uterus modulates the immune response in the offspring. To test the hypothesis that embryo implantation may be influenced by pregnancy in a setting of immune modulation. Irradiation was performed at mid-gestation in mice, either 4-8 Gy whole body or 0-8 Gy to the uterus. Splenocytes were harvested from offspring and assayed in vitro for proliferation against concanavalin A. The effect of this treatment was compared with embryo survival, weight, sex ratio, and histology of the treated embryos. The response of the spleen of offspring to Con A in vitro was similar in irradiated and control animals (P > 0.1). Lymphocyte blastogenesis in offspring of mice exposed to whole body irradiation at doses below 10 Gy did not differ from control offspring (P > 0.1). Blastogenesis to Con A of offspring of mice receiving 8 Gy to the uterus, however, was significantly lower than that of controls (P him by a preponderance of the evidence that defendant was insane when he entered his pleas of guilty in 1956 and 1957. The rule of Henderson v. State, supra, is clearly applicable and we hold that a reversal is required.
